

Economics

Bachelor of Economics / School of Economics

Program Outline

The undergraduate program in the School of Economics is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of the complex fields of economics and business. The program prepares students to confront real-world problems and exploit opportunities in an increasingly interdependent, globalizing society.

The School of Economics offers a wide range of courses and seminars in economics and management, from introductory to advanced levels, and also provides classes in the history of social thought. Class sizes are typically small, encouraging focused discussion.

Our aim is to equip students with the knowledge and skills needed to make a significant and positive impact in their chosen careers.

Career Prospects

Graduates from the School of Economics often further their education at the graduate level and can be found at Nagoya University and other world-renowned universities, including other Japanese universities. Alumni are prepared for careers in government, international organizations, universities, research institutes, and business enterprises. Additionally, our location in the largest manufacturing center of Japan provides access to world-famous companies.
